POLITICAL.

The Colonial Secretary said that the only Minister whose advertisement to the electors contained anything more than the bare announcement of his candidature; and the document was the most important thing that he had seen since the election of last time. He thought it would be very desirable if East Sydney that those who were against the Government on Mr. Combes's motion would not find it easy to justify their conduct by "fact or fiction," so that he hoped that the Premier and his colleagues would have a remarkable reticence on the subject of the advertisement, and that the "designing and unscrupulous persons" to whom Mr. Parkes refers are the only individuals who have had the temerity to explain and defend their conduct in this regard. Mr. Parkes went on to refer to the personal condition of the colony during his administration, and he wrote: "If our opponents tell you that the present Government cannot take credit for what we call my answer is that no such results ever followed long possession of power by former Governments." Mr. Parkes closed by saying that the tide of prosperity and civilization was

The other members elected are Mr. Charles, the physician; Mr. John Stewart, who voted with the Government; Mr. James C. Combs, Mr. J. Wisdom, and Mr. Stevens, who will probably take their seats on the Opposition benches. Mr. Wisdom succeeds Mr. J. Campbell in the representation of Morpeth. Mr. Campbell voted with the Government on Mr. Combs' motion, and gave them a steady support. Mr. Stevens did not contest the election. Mr. Stevens displaced Mr. Hannell in the representation of Northumberland. Mr. Hannell voted with the Government on Mr. Combs's motion, and had the advantage of a large majority. Mr. James M. Remington was defeated by Mr. Fitzpatrick. In the contest for the representation of Yass Plains, Mr. Fitzpatrick is a steady supporter of the Government, and gave them the benefit of his advice in his discussions respecting the release of Gardiner. Mr. Fitzpatrick made speeches, Mr. Parkes declared that he did not want the support of those singularly independent men, who voted with the Government only when they thought the Government was right; and it is probable that the Government are owing to this declaration that we find nearly all the members declaring that they will not go into the House as party men, and that they will only support a Government so long as they approve of its

THE WEATHER AND CROPS—PASTORAL.
PLEASANT seasonable weather has prevailed in Sydney throughout the past month, southerly and easterly winds having tempered the heat of the summer sun. A sufficient quantity of rain has fallen to keep the vegetation fresh and green. The news from the country districts is not altogether of a satisfactory character. The weather in some localities has been very dry, and the crops and grass have suffered in consequence.

The wheat crop in some places has been good—equal to or better than the average yield; but in other districts the crops have been poor, and the prospects so unpromising that many farmers have been obliged to sell their cattle. On the coast the corn has been fair to good, but the yield than in most years, the rain having been less during the season.

TRANSIT OF VENUS.

One of our Melbourne telegrams contains the following information:—"In referring to the transit at the Observatory. The weather was watched until close on noon when there was a break in the clouds."

[illegible]

A TRANSIT—NORTH AUSTRALIA.—A correspondent to the Herald furnishes the following particulars of a phenomenon:—One of the most brilliant and interesting occurrences, which is said to take place every century, was witnessed at this town—namely, Venus transiting the Sun. It took place on the 10th of June, 1874, as seen at Cockburn, with the naked eye. At 10 p.m. I perceived the first indication of the crescent of the planet, which was orange, and surrounded by a dark line or circle ring on the opaque side. At the crescent, about fifteen minutes past 6, in my opinion, the planet was at its greatest elongation, and appeared in the centre of the disc, about midway between upper edge of the crescent, this star shows out with great brilliancy, and some of the stars of light all gathered round it. The beautiful, clear, orange, and transparently tinted twenty minutes, when clouds concealed the planet, and it was seen for the second time, about fifty-five minutes past 6, the face of the moon and star. About 7 p.m. the planet was again seen, and the appearance of the ring on the upper portion. It again showed out with great brilliancy, and appeared to form the inner angle of light; but it was not long before it was gradually dispersed and immensely tiny black dots appeared, surrounded and covered the moon, permeating the whole of the sky, and the planet was again seen; we were witness; they did not remain long, quickly disappearing, and at about ten minutes past 7 the star again appeared.

though fluctuations and uncertainty have characterized most of the nation's sales, and the views of owners are divided as to whether or not the important sales figures have lately been sound. The price for good steel has averaged about $10¢ to $12½¢ for good to extra choice; average lites realize from 9¢ to 10¢ per lb., whilst there is hardly any demand for inferior grades, waste lites, and for such quotations must be considered as very low. Waste is highly satisfactory in the same way. The market contained some 1600 tons, amongst which the sale of Messrs. Ward,

Co., 77, Strand, London.—ADV.

THE 11th ANNUAL REPORT

In the first place the colony is divided into what are termed, "Settled" and "Unsettled" districts. These descriptions are accepted as carrying no legal force, but are open to interpretation, and in a broad sense may be accepted as meaning what they purport to mean. The line of demarkation is, however, arbitrary; and in the rapid change to which the face of the country is subject by the progress of the Government, the location of old ones to new territory, it often happens that there is more "settlement," so far as it applies to industrious population, in the "unsettled" districts than in some parts of the technically "settled," but the only real occupants of the latter are the few natives who dwell with the not much more human black-fellow. The so-called "Settled districts" consist of a strip of coast varying in width, but averaging about thirty miles from the sea. At one or two points, however, probably to fit in with convenient natural features, the strip is extended or narrowed as the time the line was drawn, the inner boundary comes to within ten miles of the sea. The Settled districts can at any time be extended by proclamation; but there is this important condition precedent, that any proposed extension must be approved by the resolutions of both Houses of Parliament, by virtue of which the Governor in Council may resume border, and that the same day the same vessel was ordered to leave the border and recrossed for the purpose of evading duty.

"6. That the Government of this colony be urged to re-open trade with the United States, with the Government of New South Wales for the purpose of renewing the treaty subject to some modification, and to the Government of Victoria for the purpose of being sought with the Hon. the Premier and the Treasurer for the purpose of urging this matter upon their attention, and to the Government of New South Wales to suggest themselves to those gentlemen."

SUBURBAN POST-OFFICES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—I wish to bring under the notice of the Post-office authorities the fact that the suburban post-offices, situated on the railway line suffer by reason of the early hour at which the mails close.

The earliest time for posting letters for the first delivery in Sydney is in the morning at 6 p.m., whilst at North Shore, Double Bay, and other suburbs the closing hour is at 5½ and 5 o'clock respectively for the first delivery; and at inland towns, such as Bathurst and Goulburn, the mails do not close till a late hour at night.

It is, therefore, very serious argument may be made for the coming year.

A SUBURBAN RESIDENT.

December 24.

[illegible]

TO THE ELECTORS OF WELLINGTON.
GENTLEMEN.—At the earnest desire of some of my

I am not unknown to many of you, and although not able to state that I have spent a quarter of a century in the service of my country, as some of my colleagues do, I do lay claim to having been most diligent in my Parliamentary duties since my return as member for Central Cumberland, now nearly three years ago, during which time I have taken part in one hundred and forty-six divisions, have carefully attended to all measures affecting the interests of my country, and have given as vigorously as I could to the best of my judgment, and without fear or favour.

Apart from this, you will, I am sure be aware that I have not confined my attention to the interests of my own electorate, but have, when occasion presented itself, paid special regard to those of your district and of winning popularity, and shall always take pleasure in doing so, if elected.

The free-trade policy of the present Government has always met with my approval; and free trade will be strongly supported by me. Although at the present time I have a considerable fortune locked up in one of our most important manufactures, I am satisfied that what I have done for the whole colony is benefit few. If we are unable now, in the infancy of our manufactures, to compete with foreign markets, let us by industry persevere until we can do so without the need of protection.

With reference to the Land Act, I am of opinion that we should introduce a measure of this nature, and that the existing law shall not induce people to emigrate to the colony. The price of land is by far too dear, and until a more liberal measure is passed we cannot hope to see selected and cultivated the millions of acres of land now unoccupied.

With regard to the California Mail Service, I would give my cordial co-operation to any plan by which the service could be performed by one of our local companies.

On the important question of education, on which the future welfare of this great colony so much depends, I have always been in favour of a National system to the exclusion of the existing local schools.

I am of opinion that the State should know no more religion, that all should meet on one broad platform of education unbiassed by sectarian influence. I am not in favour of absolute free education under all circumstances but would support a compulsory system.

Considerable loss has occurred to the colony in consequence of the amendments to the Bill not having become law. I am convinced that the Act, with the amendments introduced, would have worked most satisfactorily, and I consider it would be highly valuable to introduce a clause providing a deposit of fifty pounds by every candidate in order to prevent sham candidature. I am not at all favourable to the proposed extension of the metropolis, but consider that the country electorates should be fairly represented according to extent and population.

I would advocate the extension of our railway lines as of vital importance to the well being of the country.

If elected I shall introduce a bill to make Government responsible for the safe transit of gold from the different parts of the colony.

The Mining Bill now in force does not meet the requirements of the miners, and I would give my aid in removing all obstructions that now prevent its being made practicable.

On the above and other matters of importance, I shall be glad to discuss the plans of the Government prior to the election, and if returned to Parliament my best efforts shall be used in your interests.

I am, Gentlemen,
Yours faithfully,
JAMES DOUGLAS

JOHN HUMBLE.

Mary Villa, Elizabeth Hay, December 10, 1874.

TO THE ELECTORS OF MUDGEE.

GENTLEMEN,—At the instance of some of the influential electors of Mudgee, I have the honour to announce myself as a candidate for your suffrages.

I am not, as you are aware, altogether a stranger to public life, as I have had some experience in the conduct of public business in all branches of the Legislature, having been elected to the Council, under the late administration of Sir James Martin, in 1867, and having sat in the Legislative Assembly for the electoral district of the Murray during portion of Last Parliament and the whole

Owing to the pressure of my private engagements I have been unable to devote the time and interest that I desired, that time and attention to the discharge of public duties which are essential for their satisfactory performance. But I have now abundant leisure for this purpose, and I respectfully offer to you my services as your representative.

I shall very briefly state my opinions on the leading questions which it appears to me that the attention of the electors should be fixed at this time. I shall venture, fully, when I have the pleasure of meeting you—which I propose to do at once—explain my views on all matters concerning which you have a right to be perfectly informed, and I have a duty to furnish such information.

occupied at the time the Assembly during the last session, I should have been found giving my cordial assistance to those members who upheld the dignity and vindicated the independence of Parliament by the adoption of the course which has ended in this appeal to the country. No more serious source of our distress for the last few sessions can be found than the system of vigilant and unrelenting, un-natural interference, however slight and however unintentional, with the freedom and independence of the Legislature. And nothing, in my opinion, would have been a more fatal indication of our want of sympathy with the great and noble principles of freedom, than to have received the magnificent inheritance of freedom from our fathers, and to have been so unworthy as to squander and enjoy, then to treat as indifferent or unworthy, of retaining protest the proceedings of the Government which led in the first place to Mr. Combs's motion and finally to the dissolution.

I am in favour of the amendment of the Land Laws and shall be found to hold opinions substantially in agreement with those to which the author of the existing Acts has given expression. I shall be prepared to extend the principle of free selection, under proper restrictions, to larger areas; to simplify the procedure of our land offices; to protect the selectors who have acted in good faith from contravening the law, either by the action of the Government or by the action of the public; to protect the minors or non-continuous occupants of residence; and generally to regard the administration of our vast estate in the public lands of the country with the view of rapidly

I shall be prepared to give my assistance in the immediate enactment of the Act for regulating burning operations, the defects of which have been made manifest by its working and by the almost insurmountable difficulties which the Courts have encountered in attempting a reasonable interpretation of its provisions.

I am a supporter of the cause of public education as present in force; but I shall be ready to give a patient consideration to any proposals for its improvement, and a hearty support towards carrying them out.

I am profoundly convinced of the necessity of having without delay railway communication between the metropolis and the south coast.

On all matters of less public importance I shall reserve what I have in my full I shall have the pleasure of meeting you face to face.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
P. A. JENNINGS.

TO THE ELECTORS OF CENTRAL CUMBERLAND.
GENTLEMEN,—Having simply informed you by advertisement of the result of the late election, I have the pleasure to inform you that I have been elected to the office of Member of Parliament for the Central Division of Cumberland, and I have the honour to acknowledge the confidence reposed in me by the Electors of the Division.

your election, and I am anxious for the representation of your electors in the House of Representatives. I am confident you will naturally expect to hear from me again. The summer of 1856, 20 years I have been intimately acquainted with you, both politically and socially, renders it unnecessary that I should, at this time, trouble you by adverting to events of the past, especially as I have not any of the political sins of the last year. I am so glad to hear that you will be in New York, that I have the pleasure of personally visiting you, and I hope shortly to have the pleasure of meeting you face to face. I deem it unnecessary to do more in this address than refer to one or two matters which must at a very early period after the meeting of Parliament occupy the minds of your members. The country has been lately very busy in the consideration of the new Electoral Act, and the Parliament has not yet commenced its session.

The land law of the colony is said by many persons to be imperfectly administered, and by others that its defects are so numerous that it is impossible to give a full and correct opinion. I am the first point I cannot venture an opinion; but upon the second point I am of opinion that the present Governments are highly culpable for not at least making an attempt to pass a bill through Parliament with a view to the settlement of a small estate to exist in our land law, and otherwise to deal with the various interests which have grown up around the property expected of the present Government, so far as it was premised by them in the Governor's speech at the opening of last Parliament. The present Public Schools had the honour of being the first of the new system, and I am at the measure which the Government have introduced through the Assembly, it has nevertheless effected a misreading; and I know that Mr. Parkes, who had charge of the bill, and his colleagues expected to see a strengthening of the system much greater results accomplished. I am of opinion, however, that the Democratic element never ought to have been introduced into the Public School System of Education. Much business of feeling was caused by it at the time, and that feeling still exists. I cannot, however, go with those who would Dramatization schools which have grown up and the State Act. They must receive their assistance from the Treasury, through the Department of Education, to which they are entitled by law; but no future legislation on the subject I should object to any extension of the system. From the first introduction of the Irish system of education (Lord Stanley's) into this country, I have been an advocate of the same great measure of the system, and of the more than ten thousand children, Flinnick, Reg., and Sir Charles Nicholson, who have the habit of visiting the schools conducted under that system at their annual examinations.

Hoping that I shall be able on an early day to pay my respects to you personally,
